“Life Is Too Serious”

Paintings and Drawings

MARCIA COPPEL

Opening Reception:
Friday, May 6, 2011 6 - 8:30 pm

It would be hard to imagine what Marcia Coppel's paintings would look like if she had never been to Mexico. They would surely be interesting. Her characteristic laid back, whimsical drawings might be the same and her interest in ordinary people relaxing at lunch or at the beach might even be similar. But her colors - no, no! The colors come from Mexico.

And she is a true colorist. The figures she draws are rudimentary and the drawing merely gives her a framework to play with the colors she loves. She paints mostly tête-à-tête but sometimes there are three folk sitting at an umbrella covered table in an outdoor patio or on the beach.
